

Linda Morris Blair – Class of 1960

A favorite for many of us was art teacher Martha Abbott. She was creative and innovative in bringing art to her students through a variety of projects, and many of her students went on to professional careers. Another favorite was English teacher, Mary Margaret Johnson. She too, obviously brought much personal effort towards successful student experiences.

I had two sisters and a brother who also attended Southeast, Virginia (Morris) Morrison, Charlene (Morris) Conrad and Gary Morris

After Gradation

I first attended Kansas City Junior College. At that time, it was unbelievably small, but turned out to be a gratifying, worthwhile experience—small classes, individual attention, many advantages. Following KCJuCo, I attended Missouri University, and shortly after that, I began married life. I had the privilege of being a ‘full-time mom’ for several years. Later, I enjoyed a career in counseling psychology, which included teaching in a local community college.
