

Catherine Bergstrom-Katz – Class of 1961

I lived at 7404 Paseo while attending Southeast. I participated in choir, and my other memorable classes were Math and French.

High School Memories

What I remember most about high school are football and basketball games, induction, the hallways and friends. At the time, the civil rights movement was happening, we had our first African American student, and discussions were taking place at school about the presidential election.

Beyond High School

I worked summers as a lifeguard for Lee Flappan. I graduated from the University of Kansas, then went on to become an actor in Los Angeles, where I still live. I am now a clinical psychologist.

Message to Classmates:

“...I hope all is well with them, and that I see them at the next reunion.”
