

I have always been fascinated by art...

This is a passion my wonderful teacher and mentor César Lopez awakened in me, another gift that I humbly thank him for.

I am also deeply grateful to all my visual artist friends whom I met at the Instituto Superior de Arte who let me watch over their shoulder as they chose to “immortalize” my countenance.

Surrounded by art it is not so strange that I began organizing the thoughts I had always been recording off and on anyway. Abroad, away from family and country, I found that I began to appreciate my roots even more. From this combination I crystallized what became my first book “Los Herederos”.

My second work, that I am currently rounding off, mainly features in my city of birth and will possibly bear the same name. In “Guantánamo” I ambitiously want to show you around in my city in four different era's, featuring characters I have come to care for and I hope you will too.
