Pastoral Letter

This year, Easter Sunday will come to us in completely different ways. We used to gather together with our family members and visitors at church and celebrate our Risen Christ. However, this year, we will do it individually, maintaining social distancing at home. I watched news that some churches insisted on having in-person Easter Sunday worship on Sunday while numerous people have struggled to slow down the spread of the virus. One interviewer who is a member of the church said that she is not worried about the infection of the coronavirus because she is covered by the blood of Jesus Christ. And a pastor who intends to have Easter Sunday Worship said that his church members have extreme faith and deep convictions, and their faith tells them that they need to assemble. I don't want to judge them with my viewpoints and my faith. But I ask myself, 'What if Jesus was here experiencing the pandemic with us?' What do you think?
