

Stepping Stone School News

From the Director...

Winter may finally decide to poke its head into Texas soon. When it does, that usually will kick off several illnesses such as colds, flues and other respiratory illnesses. Why is it that colds and such are more prevalent in the cooler seasons? Most likely due to the cooler temperatures, children and people in general are less likely to go outside. Keeping cooped up all day increases the amount of touching, sneezing and coughing on one another, therefore spreading more GERMS! Stepping Stone will go outside anytime the weather is above 40. The crisp air and sunshine is hugely beneficial to our kiddos! Please be sure to be prepared; send your child with the appropriate clothing to accommodate inclement weather. We also will not allow children to remain inside while the others go out. If you feel your child is not well enough to engage in the daily activities of the school, they should remain at home until they are able to participate. There are many other ways to help stop the spread of illnesses. Such as: Hand washing, hand washing & hand washing!!! Everyone should be washing their hands after using the bathroom, coughing, sneezing and wiping noses; before & after meals! Help us stop the spread of germs by encouraging your child to use proper hand washing techniques and coughing and sneezing into their elbow. Also by keeping ill children at home.

Putting Families First!
