

What is one thing that you and the main character have in common?

What is not the same between you at all?

Do any of these characters seem familiar to you?

If this were the story of your life where in the story would you be right now?

What makes you say that?