History

All three styles of Imperial billiard cloth are produced at the Novalan factory in Mexico. Novalan, has been producing commercial textiles since 1847 and is known throughout the world for its high quality wool products. Novalan is the largest producer of wool products on the American continent. Since 1983 the factory has made significant investments to improve its buildings and equipment becoming a vertically integrated company controlling the entire wool making process from the purchase of the raw material to the finished product. These investments along with their skilled craftsmen allow Novalan to produce the highest quality products on the market today.

Only the highest quality materials are used to make Imperial billiard cloth. High grade polyester is blended with wool that comes from the best suppliers in Australia, New Zealand and Argentina. Computers control the weaving and dyeing process to ensure that the weave and color is consistent throughout the entire piece of cloth. Imperial billiard cloth will enhance the look and play of any billiard table.
