The Highlights

Newgrange Underground Passage Tombs

Older than Stonehenge, and the Great Pyramid of Giza, the Newgrange tombs in Ireland holds as many mysteries as each of those famous structures.

Newgrange is best known for the illumination of its passage and chamber by the winter solstice sun.

Belvedere House, Gardens & Jealousy Walls

Built in 1740, Jealousy and revenge are the key themes highlighted in this unusual house which is reputed to be extremely haunted.

On the premises is the "Jealousy Wall" that was the core of much disdain and horrific deeds resulting from sibling rivalry.

The Highlights

Carrowmore Megalithic Site

Composed of a large collection of prehistoric monuments near Sligo, Ireland, these were built by voyaging farmers around 4,000 BC, during the Neolithic era.

Its cemetery has been deemed the largest and oldest in Europe.

Queen Maeve's Tomb

Folklore says it was built for the mythical Iron Age Queen Maeve, whose father, the high king of Ireland, gave her Connacht as a gift.

Dating back to 3000 BC, it is considered bad luck to remove a stone from the cairn, and good luck to take one up the hill with you to deposit on it.

The Highlights

Graves of Bram Stoker's Parents

The Cemetery in St. Johns Cemetery is said to hold the remains of (Dracula author's) Bram Stoker's parents, Charlotte and Abraham.

It is believed (and essentially confirmed) that the Cholera epidemic of 1938 was said to have been the inspiration for Bram Stoker's epic novel.

Cistercian Boyle Abbey

Built in 1134, this structure was a former Cistercian Monastery, gifted by Henry I of England.

There are a number of legends and ghost stories relating to the abbey, including "The White Lady", thought to be Matilda of England, daughter of Henry I, imprisoned here for 5 years.

The Highlights

Lough Key Forest Park Cruise around McDermott Castle

This magical place also has dark secrets. Two skeletons had been unearthed with large rocks wedged into their mouths, due to the belief that their spirits left through their mouth. It is believed, they were buried this way with the hope of trapping the spirit in the body, preventing them to return to haunt the relatives.

Mullaghmore Coastal Drive

We will pause from the mysterious explorations to do a jaw-dropping coastal journey in Mullaghmore.

This is where your soul will be captured by the Irish Leprechauns!

The Highlights

Sliabh Liag

Take in these breathtaking views, for they are the highest cliffs in Ireland!

Sir Walter Scott wrote about these majestic landscapes.

“The midnight wind came wide and dread, Swelled with the voices of the dead; Far on the future battle-heath His eye beheld the ranks of death.”

Donegal Castle

Built by the O'Donnell chieftain in the 15th century, beside the River Eske, the Castle is furnished throughout and includes Persian rugs and French tapestries.

Information panels chronicles the history of the Castle owners from the O'Donnell chieftains to the Brooke family.

The Highlights

Glencar Waterfall

A verse of the poem "The Stolen Child" describe the magic of Ireland's tallest waterfall. It takes the reader to an imaginative and magical space above the waterfall to meet mischievous fairies, tiny pools and stars, weeping ferns, trout and unquiet dreams. Here expect the Fairies to seduce you to come and stay with them.

Parkes Castle

This fortified manor house, was erected in 1609 by Captain Robert Parke, an English settler.

It commands a splendid view over the tranquil waters of Lough Gill.

The Highlights

Tobernalt Holy Well

Tobernalt, meaning “Cliff Well”, was named after a nearby spring with alleged curative powers. It was a holy site in Celtic times and later became a Christian Shrine.

Priests secretly came here to celebrate Mass during the 18th Century, when Catholic worship was illegal.

Festival of Fire – Hill of Uisneach

Many say, Uisneach is the most mythological and sacred center of Ireland, home to Ériu, the sovereignty goddess, whom Ireland is named. Saint Patrick visited Uisneach. His place of worship is now known as St. Patrick’s Bed.

During Bealtaine (May), a fire is lit on Uisneach to celebrate the coming of summer. Adjoining hills join in for a spectral delight.

The Highlights

Leap Castle

Fierce family feuds have plagued this 15th-century castle. Brother turned against brother; one killed as he held Mass in the chapel. Centuries later came a gruesome discovery of a dungeon filled with human bones, the remains of those imprisoned and executed in the castle. Several apparitions have been reported. Among them is "It," a small grey human figure, with a skeletal face.

Fitzpatrick Castle

The original house, Mount Mapas was built in 1740 by Col. John Mapas, although records show it probably was much earlier. Could the dark history and tragedies that took over the castle over the centuries bring the phantoms out to tell their secrets?
