Reflections on the 18th Sunday in Ordinary Time : From Deacon Jim

It’s all about establishing priorities! What is important in your life?

While researching this reflection, I ran across this story about the life of Alfred Nobel who was forced into facing this question. One morning he was surprised to read his own obituary in a French newspaper. One of his brothers had died and a careless reporter used a prepared obituary about Alfred Nobel. Nobel was disturbed to learn that he was seen only as a dynamite king who earned his fortune manufacturing and selling explosives. He had hoped his invention would have other uses than in war efforts.

As a result Nobel resolved to show the world the true purpose of his life. He revised his will so that his fortune would be given to the recognition of great achievements with the highest award going to those who had done the most to promote world peace. Today we all associate him with the Nobel Peace Prize rather than the manufacture and sale of explosives.

What do you want people to remember about your life?

As we continue through the summer focusing on the task of drafting our Mission Readiness Statement, one of our newest parishioners and active members reminded us that a big focus of the Archdiocese’s guidance document is on our plans to meet the challenges and/or take advantage of the opportunities highlighted by the survey. To that end we ask each of you to discern and share with us any ideas you may have that would potentially improve our parish life. Your observations and thoughts are most important to us.

To that end, the focus of our fifth meeting was not only planning to glean more input from our fellow parishioners, but to focus on challenges and opportunities we face, which surfaced in the AOB survey, and address each in light of our core mission priorities.

We plan to do our own in-pew survey at all Masses next weekend and involve as many people as we can. We want our churches to grow. We have done and are doing a lot of service-related activities, social activities, and make spiritual growth activities a main priority. Many times we lack participation. We all lead busy lives but our spiritual life should not be neglected in the process. What can we do to inspire old and young alike? How can we get a more visible presence in the community? How can we help ourselves and those in need around us? How can we encourage more participation... more vocations? Are we good stewards?

These are just a few questions that relate to our core mission priorities. The list is by no means complete. Think about it. Pray about it. Christ is all in all. [Colossians 3:11]
