

Involvement

A coach should make sure his players know that he wants to be involved in their life outside of the game. They should know about their school work, home lives, and more, so that they're able to connect with their players on a deeper level.