

Small Business Owner: One of the Hardest Jobs in America

Most small business start-ups are the results of an entrepreneur (owner) taking a chance on his/her passion. Mostly, that entrepreneur just wants to focus on that passion and how to build it into his or her wildest dream.

Unfortunately, running a business is not that simple:

- There are regulatory requirements to adhere to at the federal, state and local government levels
- There are tax filing requirements depending on the product or services you provide and if you have employees
- There is the important reality of keeping track of your business finances.
- Depending on your business' legal structure, you may be required to file an LLC or Corp Annual Report
- Last but not least, there is the need to have a business operational structure. Businesses like individuals need structure to function effectively. Does your business have structure?

All of the above are time consuming and takes away from time needed to focus on building your business.

To entrust these business functions to a service provider, you want to know they will:

- Respect you and your business enough to make sure your regulatory requirements are met and on time.
- Provide you with timely financial statements and advice on direction and any irregularities.
- Not break your bank with charges of services you do not need.
- Be honest, fair and straight forward in their dealings with you at all times.
