HANDS-ON EXPERIENCE AT NURSING HOME CNA student praises program, Instructor honored at meeting

She's Nottoway High School royalty, and she's also a queen of the people -- particularly senior citizens.

Senior Tre'Auna Yates, who was crowned Cougar Homecoming Queen last Fall, is enrolled in the Certified Nurse's Aide program at the Amelia Nottoway Technical Center.

The ANTC made a presentation at Thursday night's School Board meeting, and "Queen Tre'Auna" shared her clinical experiences at Heritage Hall Rehabilitation Center in Blackstone.

VALARIE HARRIS
Principal

"I was able to witness and partake in the job of a CNA," she told officials Thursday night. "Clinicals gave me a new outlook on nursing...It's

Work "opened her eyes"

is easy to learn your material and practice on mannequins... but when there are real lives at stake, it opens your eyes a bit wider. Your patient becomes family, your job as a CNA becomes a hobby you love to do and you enjoy it. My clinical experience was a '10' out of '10,' and I will do it again."

JUDITH NELLER
Presented plant by Principal Harris

ANTC principal Valarie Harris commended and presented a plant to CNA instructor Judith Neller, who has more than 50 years' experience in nursing. Instructor Neller didn't miss a day of work during the year and "her knowledge and experience was invaluable in the cultivation of our CNA students this year."

Principal Harris noted that CNA students have earned 11 college credits, met requirements for the Nurse Aide Career Studies Certificate, and will participate in commencement May 14th at Southside Virginia Community College.
