

Mindful Co-Parenting Tips

Keys to Mindful Co-parenting

PUT YOUR CHILD FIRST. Be committed to your children's needs as a priority. Do everything possible to protect your children from co-parenting conflicts.

LET THE PAST GO. Your past holding onto grievances hurts your child. If you are having problems, be responsible work on letting the past go, perhaps with a counselor or therapist. Also, stay in the present and learn to let go of minor issues. Focus on the well-being of your child and the well-being of your co-parenting.

COMMUNICATE EFFECTIVELY. This Co-Parenting program gives you tips and tools to help you co-parent effectively, communicate calmly, and listen to the other parent with respect. Be polite and not demeaning of your co-parent.

HONORING AGREEMENTS. Once you have a co-parenting agreement, honor it. You will give stability for your child, a consistency to build trust between the other co-parent and your child. Honoring agreements builds respect and appreciation from both your co-parent and your child.

INSTITUTE BOUNDARIES. Respect each other's privacy. It is not appropriate to discuss personal issues. Honoring a co-parenting agreement and launching effective communication skills and boundaries is detrimental to productive co-parenting.

MINDFUL PARENTING AND CO-PARENTING. Stay in the present. Find support to manage your emotions. Think of yourself as a company with a very important job to raise your child, stay mindful.

What is Mindfulness & Co-parenting?

Mindfulness: The quality or state of being conscious or aware of something. A mental state achieved by focusing one's awareness on the present moment, while calmly acknowledging and accepting one's feelings, thoughts, and bodily sensations. Being mindful means paying close attention to or being especially conscious of something.

Co-parenting: Co-parenting refers to a parenting situation where adults share the duties of parenting a child. Co-parents may include a variety of configurations, including a mother and a father, two mothers, two fathers, a parent with an adult sibling or grandparent, or a parent and another adult relative.
