

Distant Healing is a technique and practise where you aren't required to be physically present to receive healing. Distance Reiki works according to an ancient principle called the "Hermetic Law of Similarity", which states that we are all connected, as we are all made of energy and part of a larger whole. Invoking this law during a Distance Reiki session allows the practitioner to link to the energy field of the recipient. The intention to activate, balance and harmonize the client's energy centres, and aid in the healing is sent by the practitioner and received by the client in an instant transmission. The healer can then access information about the client and transmit healing through the connection of Light Source. This can be explained by Quantum physics, it's called the "Entanglement Theory". Two particles of energy meet each other they can share information and mirror each other even if separated by time and space.

When performing a Distance Treatment, all practitioners have their own "feel". I will take a few minutes to explain my own personal techniques. I start with a 20-30 min meditation focusing and directing my own energy on the client, followed by an energetic aura sweep, and clearing. I include salt water "baths" where I fill a large bowl with water, Dead Sea salt and Himalayan salts. I can "feel" stuck energies through this process and work to release this "stickiness" and sweep it into the salt bath before beginning on the energy centres. This salt water is then poured out to keep your aura "clean". I include a large amount of healing crystals during treatments, each coinciding with the chakras of the energy body. Working through the main 15 chakras. Clearing, releasing, allowing for proper movement. This process can take between 45-60 mins depending on level of release needed and felt. I use master Reiki symbols over your chakra centres to ensure they are spinning freely by the end of session. Nearing the end of treatment, I do a pendulum activity which will help to highlight chakras that may tend to slow or become stagnant again. With this information, I can forward hints and tips to the client to help them keep the balance and harmony in these centres before total stagnation occurs. I complete each treatment with a tarot and oracle reading. Asking Spirit, the clients angelic team that has joined myself and my team of angels, if there is any information that should be past along, any guidance, any insight to be given to serve the highest and greatest good of the client. (15-20 min general reading)

I close with a loving prayer and ask that all healing light surround you for days to come.
