Have the students write two or three questions they would like to ask all of their classmates, using the causative structure. For example. Let the students choose what they want to ask. As they write their survey questions, monitor to help them and correct errors as needed.

Then tell the students they need to collect data from all the other students on the questions they wrote. They should all get up and mingle, asking each other student in class their questions and recording the answers. A gallery walk involves putting pictures or prompts around the room and letting students walk around discussing each one- just like in an art gallery! For this lesson on the causative, you could post pictures of famous people around the room, and let students go from picture to picture, speculating about what each celebrity has done for them. Well done! Try it out for yourself! If you want to check out some ready-made grammar lesson plans, then have a look at some of these resources. Lingua House. ESL Lesson Plans.
