New Academicians

The event was organized by the prestigious International Academy of Social Sciences, a learned society that publishes two peer-reviewed academic journals and includes prominent figures from government, the arts, and sciences. Recent inductees include the Minister of Education of Italy and high ranking nobles from Spain.

A solemn academic ceremony was held Saturday April 8th at 10:30 AM at the UAC Global School of Management campus in Doral to invest three new Academicians of Social Science.

The Three Honoree

The three honorees were Mrs. Dayamy Rodriguez, President and CEO of the Suarez Museum of Natural History, Mr. Luis Suarez, Curator of the Suarez Museum of Natural History, and UAC professor, Dr. Orlando Villaverde. Mrs. Rodriguez and Mr. Suarez are well known philanthropists and community leaders in South Florida who are well known in the Americas and Europe for their conservation efforts.

The ceremony was chaired by Dr. Otto F. von Feigenblatt, President of the International Academy of Social Sciences (IASS) and associate dean of Institutional Relations of UAC Global School of Management, who was recently knighted by the King of Spain with the prestigious Order of Isabella the Catholic. Prominent members of the community attended the event, including members of the City Government of Doral, to show their respect for the honorees and two UAC students received awards for their achievements in service and academics. The ceremony also included a presentation about the outreach activities of UAC Global School of Management in Europe and about the great opportunities it offers for internships, undergraduate and graduate programs, and academic exchanges with international institutions. The ceremony was followed by a cocktail reception.
