"Flying by Starlight"

30" x 50" Value: $100

Over the past two years we have all had to spend a lot of time staying at home and for someone as outgoing as I am, this was incredibly hard on the heart and the spirit. I watched the empty streets of Canada Centre and the apartment balconies. I watched the empty playgrounds and the empty streets. I longed and yearned. When I started the "Flying by Starlight" quilt, I wanted the quilt to be the main event. I included both present and future goals added to with quilting, to represent those who can no longer be present, but who are nevertheless with us in spirit. The quilt is made from large Leg Cabin block, a symbol of comfort and hopefulness. This is made from half square triangles and a Pinwheel, and represents us all forward toward a brighter future.

Christmas Tree Skirt
67" round. Estimated value $100.
I haven't decorated for Christmas much in the last few years, but this year I tried to decorate every corner I have been spending more time at home and I realized I still love it as the kids. Fortunately, this challenge was the perfect opportunity. I decided to make a quilted tree skirt. The Christmas packages are 3 sizes of the 4 inch. Red and Green paper scraps are pre-cut. I have very good paper for the tree.

Look at the intricate patterns of the Even Better Moments! I had a great time in the museum. And the color of the background fabric. The one I bought is so nice for the price. I bought one of the patterns

Return to the Cabin
30" x 30" Value: $100
Blocks used: half square triangle, 4 patch, rail fence, log cabin.
The log cabin block has always been a made back in 1976. I am thankful for since then! The odd blocks on the right Illinois, California, and Virginia.

THE LAKE AT GRANDAD'S RANCH
Size 28" x 28" Value: $100
My Grandad ran cattle on a small ranch near a small lake where we could fish and catch turtles. I had wonderful picnics out there, too. Unfortunately, the lake, so I decided to use my DERWENT II blocks in this 2021 PPOG challenge. The blocks Hourglass, Log Cabin, and Half-Square Triangle.
