St. Johns County United Way 2019 Givers Gala January 25th

by Melissa Nelson

United Way of St. Johns County's Givers Gala was imagined to celebrate the strong spirit and history of giving in St. Johns County. Artifacts or personalities of the past are integral in the First Coast story, but equally important is the history of giving. Seeded in a tradition of generosity, this legacy continues today. The Givers Gala celebrates the heart of philanthropy in St. Johns County in a way only United Way-SJC can do by bringing together local givers from all walks of life for a festive night of fellowship and inspiring stories. United Way-SJC highlights the cause and message: You live here. You give here. It stays here.

The 2018 sold-out inaugural event was attended by philanthropic residents from across St. Johns County. Awards in 2018 were given to the following:

- Corporate Philanthropic Award - Ring Power Corporation
- Emerging Philanthropist Award - Jeff Young of Bozard Ford Lincoln
- Philanthropic Trailblazer - Steve and Christine Chapman of All American Air

2019 recipients will be announced prior to the January event.

United Way of St. Johns County is honored to announce that two new awards will be presented at the 2019 Givers Gala. "I am so very pleased that the John and Peggy Bailey Community Leadership Award, presented by Mark Bailey, Sr. will be given for the first time this year," said Bobby Crum, Chairman. "Honoring John Bailey, Sr., a founding member and past president of United Way-SJC, along with his wife, Peggy, the award was established because the Bailey's exemplified community leadership. Like the namesake, the recipient(s) must have a heartfelt desire to make this community a better place and demonstrate leadership by diving in headfirst, but more importantly by bringing others to the cause."

Also new this year is an award for the Nonprofit of the Year. The four awards that were presented last year will return: Corporate, Emerging Philanthropist, Trailblazer and the Legacy Award. Nominations for any or all awards can be submitted electronically or on paper. A brief description that includes the award name, (continued on page 12)

Progress on Board Goals

Curb Appeal: We will be installing pine straw in the medians and mulch around the Riverview Facility in the month of November. We will also rye seed the medians and the common areas which will help strengthen the St. Augustine grass. We will be hanging Christmas lights next week at the entrances and the Riverview Facility. The water line to the pier is installed, the spickets were installed, the table has been installed, and we will be installing the sink and stainless-steel pipe clamps to complete the project.

Safety and Security: The chain and combination lock were placed on the gate at the parking lot for entrance to the tennis courts. The key card reader project is in progress.

Operations: The Board was provided a copy of the current bid policy. The current bid policy that was approved in September 2015 was read. Comment made to add Tree Squad to the preferred vendor list. Comment that any bids that are between $15000 and $50000 should be sealed and opened at the Board meeting. Comment that bids are sealed unless there is an emergency as stated in the policy. Comment ast to why bids need to be sealed if they are presented to the Board. The current policy follows normal accounting procedures and is working fine so why change the policy. Motion made to change the bid policy to sealed bids opened at the Board meetings. President Dietly a motion to change the second tier of the bid policy to sealed bids to match the verbiage for bids of over $50,000. The motion was seconded and passed by 4 yes and 2 no and carried.

Pool Deck Litigation: Parry Pools insurance company denied their claim on the project. They hired a new attorney who filed a motion to dismiss received by counsel November 7th. We are going to set it for hearing and move the case along.

Agreement with St. Johns County: Concerns about drainage with all the new development and committee needed to address this and other issues addressed. Obtain copies of the original Master plan of the Shores community with all exhibits. The zoning maps are not consistent. Need to build a committee of Board members and members of the association to look at the original documentation to bring up to date. President Dietly stated that Jeremiah Mulligan will be attending the December 6th meeting to express his opinion on the subject in an open meeting. No decisions on this subject without legal counsel present.

Donations by Baker Company: A picture of the gazebo being donated and the cost sheet breaking down the components was distributed to the Board. The gazebo will be delivered in the next couple weeks and placed in a strategic location to promote wedding rentals.

Wildflower Meadow Group

The meadow group had our annual picnic in Faver Dykes Park on Veteran's Day and the weather and flora were beautiful. My camera was working right but I managed to save at least one picture. Going to Faver Dykes Park on Veteran's Day has been our tradition for over fifteen years and we welcome anyone interested to join us next year. Put it on your calendar for next November and, when the day is close, give us a call to learn where and when to meet.

In fact we'd be grateful if those interested would join us on the first Saturday of each month to visit and work in the meadow. We'd appreciate a few more hands and the meadow would too.

In November bushy asters were the highlight of the meadow, sprinkling over almost everything like a light snowfall.

We're beginning now to prepare the meadow for its winter rest. Already a couple of our members cut back some of the fakahatchee grasses and will soon cut back the rest. This allows the energy of the plant to go into strengthening the roots and next spring the plants will grow back more healthy and full.

Sometime early in January Baker and Company will do its annual mowing making way for what will bloom next spring. That's the thing about a meadow: not only are there differences with each season of the year; there are differences in the same season from year to year. And? Nature decides what those differences are.

We occasionally visit state and county parks and welcome newcomers, even if you want to come only on outings. Our group meets the first Saturday of each month at 8:30 AM by the Riverview Club House. Our goal is to preserve the wildflower meadow and learn about native plants, especially those that grow in this location. We're an informal group without officers or dues and hope you will join us. Call Claire at 904-826-5366 for more information.

"Diaries of a Shores Grand-Dad"

by Dirk Schroeder

First off, the timing for my last Diary was really off since it came out about three weeks before Christmas and it wasn't very festive or remotely Holiday-oriented. It was written in October so I suppose a little better planning is in order next year. This Diary is themed toward the New Year as I am trying to be more conscientious about the delivery on my part.

While watching different shows on TV recently, it appears that several show writers have a similar philosophy about life. I've heard this same verbiage repeated almost verbatim in scenes on different shows or movies. Picture this: some character isn't sure about who they want to date or what they want to be so they make this generic statement, "I don't know what I want but I do know what I don't want." With this theme in mind, now that people have received and given Christmas gifts that either they "didn't want or wanted" and in anticipation of New Years, it may be time to think about those things in your life that "you know that you don't want and the things that you do want". It happens that way in home searching the same way; it's a process of elimination where most people tell me what they want and then tell me what they don't want until we are left with what they really want.

Let's begin with simple wants - your "essentials": good health, sound mind, a nice home, a warm meal, a comfy bed and some decent clothes and shoes. None of these are considered an entitlement. How about wanting a reliable mode of transportation? That sounds so basic, yet there are extremes on the "abundant" and "deficient" side of life. For example, some folks live in their car while others have a chauffeur and even car collections. How about a family - a spouse, children and grandchildren? Here you can run into the fortunate and unfortunate sides of life again - you could experience divorce, problem children, birth defects, etc... On the other hand, you could be fortunate enough to have a happy and healthy family tree. Let's aim for the abundant and the fortunate.

How about counting our blessings? We have just about everything in the world available to us here in the US and I'm not just talking about material things. How about your Constitutional freedoms? Even though we may not have a perfect political system it is still better than most places in the world. Let's face it - a million people from all over the world want to live in the US each year because "they know what they don't want" back in their native lands.

How about an enjoyable job? Jobs are abundant right now but not all jobs are enjoyable - be glad for what you have until you can find a better one. You may have a very long list of jobs that "you know would not want" but, if you had no other choice, you would probably take one of those jobs to avoid starvation.

So the statement about "Not knowing what you want and knowing what you don't want" should be challenged; you should "know what you want"- plain and simple. Let's start the New Year with that approach. Be glad if you have the "essentials". You are blessed to live in the US, to be an American and to stand up for your country. Be kind to the family and for the family you have. Love your job and work hard. Be grateful for loyal friends. Follow the Golden Rule. Be a person of moral character. Lend others a helping hand. Always strive to be better. After you realize how grateful you really should be maybe then you can think about what you don't want.

Even though the "list of things that you want" may be short, it's the list that matters. The list of things that you don't want- does it really matter that much? In the words of Og Mandino, you may want to start with this: "I will greet this day with love in my heart." - start with that one on your list. On that note, I wish you as always, a Sunshine State of Mind.

DID YOU KNOW

St. Augustine Shores is such a multi-dimensional community - created ahead of its time. Conceived by the Deltona Corporation of Miami in the 1960's, "The Shores" is yet to be finished with over 580 lots left to be built upon and a number of multi-family, commercial and community parcels that will eventually be developed. The "Planned Unit Development" (PUD) was a major news story in its day. Here are a few details about St. Augustine Shores:

- "The Shores" as it is generally known is situated on approx. 2020 Acres with 3,421 residences and at build-out approx. 10,000 residents. The Monthly dues are at $30 and the website for the HOA is staugshores.org. The Shores is self-managed by a volunteer Homeowners Board of Directors, known as the St. Aug. Shores Service Corporation. Austin Dietly serves as its current President.

- The largest Condominium within The Shores is the Conquistador with 456 Units situated along the Intracoastal Waterway. It's Condominium Association Management (CAM) company is currently Sovereign Jacobs. More info at conquistadorcondominiums.com

- The Greens has 234 units situated along the St. Augustine

Shores Golf Course. The CAM is Sovereign Jacobs and dues are $320/mo. Minimum 6 month rentals are the rule and only 2 pets (no dangerous breeds).

- Also on the Golf Course are the oldest condos - The Fairview - situated on approx. 4 Acres. The tax rolls show 83 Units built in 1974. The Condo is self-managed and Steve Parsons is the Manager: 797-4500 for info.

- Casa Bella is another Golf Course area condominium with 56 units. The CAM is Sovereign Jacobs. All rentals must be approved. 2 pets no taller than 15" or max 25 lbs. Dues are $1,230 per quarter.

- Two apartment complexes exist within The Shores near the South entrance - Portofino and Bella Vita.

- All condos and apartments pay in to the St. Augustine Shores HOA.

Obviously, there are many more details about The Shores. Forget Google - I tried that and a lot of erroneous sites come up on searches that will steer you wrong. Contact your Local Real Estate Expert - Dirk Schroeder at 904-540-2360.

5 Reasons to Stop Avoiding Estate Planning

by Julie Ickes, J.D., LL.M.
Jackson Law Group
904-823-3333

With the new year around the corner, it's time to start thinking about what you have been avoiding and go ahead and tackle it. Estate planning is typically one of those things we avoid because it is uncomfortable. Experience practicing in estate planning has shown me that there are very few things in life that are certain, but we all know that one day our passing is one of those things. It is better to begin your estate planning at a time where that possibility seems distant.

Here are just 5 reasons to stop putting it off:

1. Save Money: While you will incur some cost upfront for the preparation of your estate plan, it can save your beneficiaries and your Personal Representative (aka executor) time and money in the future by reducing costs like probate fees, income taxes and any fees for a guardian. In addition, if you lack the mental capacity, a good plan can help avoid the expense and delay of court proceedings.

2. Control How It Is Distributed: Without an estate plan, all of your money, possessions and property will be distributed to your next of kin in accordance with the law, and this may not be your wish.

3. Select Personal Representative of Your Estate: You get to decide ahead of time who you trust the most and who will likely be alive to safeguard your property, pay your debts and distribute your estate among the beneficiaries you have named in your will.

4. Select Guardians of Your Children: If you have minor children, you can name who you would like to take care of your children.

5. Financial Decision Making and Care for Lack of Mental Capacity: Your estate plan should not only plan for what happens after you pass, but it should also address how your financial affairs, personal care and healthcare should be handled in the event that you lose mental capacity.

This year, make your #1 New Year's resolution to take care of your estate planning. As the wise saying goes, "Don't put off until tomorrow what you can do today."

Julie Ickes is an associate at Jackson Law Group. Her primary practice areas are estate planning, trust and probate administration and guardianships. She received a Bachelor of Arts degree from Smith College. Julie earned her J.D. and LL.M. in Taxation from the University of Florida Levin College of Law.

St Augustine South Improvement Association Neighborhood Holiday Decoration Contest

By Jenna Cuzick

The St Augustine South Improvement Association enjoyed a festive and delicious annual Christmas party on Wednesday, December 12, that included traditional and spiritual Christmas songs by S.A.S. resident Libby Johnson and celebration of the winners of the first-ever S.A.S. Neighborhood Holiday Decoration contest.

The St Augustine South neighborhood is FULL of holiday cheer this year! The team who selected winners for the first-ever S.A.S. holiday decoration contest realized it was NOT easy - because hundreds of yards are lit up in the community of 2,500 homes - but they did their best to spread the winners throughout the neighborhood.

Please make time this season to drive around and appreciate all of the work, energy and love that went into making each of these yards - and all the other homes not on this list - so special!

What Should I do with my Old Computer?

When we buy new computers (or any technology for that matter) we are left with the old device to dispose of. In St Johns County, you are not supposed to put it in the trash, or the recycling for normal pickup.

St Johns County does have an "Obsolete Electronics" drop off at the Tillman Ridge and the Stratton Rd Transfer stations. It's free, and easy to drop off your old electronics.

There is also a free pickup service provided by Sensible Recycling which is Veteran Owned & Operated.

It is generally considered good practice to remove the hard drive as it contains personal information that needs to be guarded against wrongful use.

For a while now, I have taken all old hard drives to Sensible Recycling's shop in Jacksonville and watched them shred them into little tiny pieces. It's amazing to see. They actually have a video of the shredder working on their website (sensiblerecycling.com). Whether you go there, or call them for a free pickup, you may rest assured they responsibly remove and destroy the hard drive and recycle your old electronics, free of charge.

Before disposing of your old computer, you probably will want to get all of your files (pictures, documents, etc.) so that you can use them on the new computer. This can normally be done quickly with an external hard drive or a high capacity USB Flash drive. If you are not sure where all of your files are located on the computer, the safest bet is to copy your entire user folder.

Computers have a folder called Users where the files for each user are stored. If you open that folder you will see folders with User names. You would want to copy the entire user folder for each of the User names that hold documents of importance.

Of course, if you are not sure or uncomfortable figuring this out, call a reputable Computer Service company (Like my company; First Coast Computer Services). I will even take away the old machine and ensure that the hard drive is properly destroyed.

Gamer's Thumb

I've written about Wii-itis, which is another name and cause for Tennis elbow or lateral epicondylitis. There is also a Gamer's Thumb, otherwise known as de Quervain's Tenosynovitis. It is a real problem and I'm not making this stuff up. Gamer's thumb or de Quervain's Tenosynovitis can be very painful and debilitating. For those who use their hands for work it may hinder such tasks.

De Quervain's Tenosynovitis occurs when a sheath around the thumb tendon's gets inflamed. Two particular tendons that move the thumb are surrounded by what is called a synovial sheath. When the sheath is abnormally stressed or rubbed by the tendons, it gets inflamed and causes pain. It's called Gamer's Thumb because it most commonly effects gamers, those who play video games, Xbox, Play Station but can also be a problem for those who text a lot or even some jobs where the hands are used a lot. For that reason it is categorized as a repetitive stress injury.

De Quervain's Tenosynovitis is often diagnosed with the Finkelstein test. The test is performed by folding the thumb down into the palm. While maintaining that position, the grasped thumb and hand are bent in the direction of the pinky, as if one were casting a fishing pole. If a sharp pain is produced over the thumb, wrist or arm, a diagnosis may be made. Other tests are done to confirm and/or rule out similar problems. The tendons are also very tender with palpation.

Conservative treatment can be quite easy and successful. The first thing to do, and sometimes the most challenging, is to first remove the stress from the tissues. This is something easier said than done for habitual texters or gamers. If necessary, the thumb can be taped in a way to protect the tissue or placed in a splint, which is more restrictive. Treatment may also include soft tissue manipulation or joint manipulation if they too are restrictive. Eventually stretching is performed followed by strengthening.

Reversing the effects of Gamer's Thumb does not take long, provided the stresses through the thumb are reduced. It's just a matter of controlling the stresses, allowing the tissues to heal and then slowly working on proper function. In chronic or reoccurring cases, adaptive equipment may be prescribed such as built up grips or larger electronic devices.

The therapists at First Coast Rehabilitation are familiar with Gamer's Thumb either by diagnosis or personal experience. If you are experiencing this type of pain, please call either of our offices to schedule an appointment: (St. Augustine: 904-829-3411 or (Palatka: 386-325-2721). We're happy to help.

Financial Tips for Snowbirds ... Present and Future

Winter is here again – which may make you wish you were somewhere else. You might be thinking how pleasant it would be to become a snowbird and move to a warmer climate for the season. Of course, your stage of life will help determine if you are prepared to be a snowbird now or if you're just hoping to be one in the future. But in either case, you'll need to be financially prepared.

So, let's look at what it would take to be a snowbird – tomorrow and today:

Snowbird tomorrow – The further ahead you plan, the more options you're likely to have when you embark on the snowbird life. If you're going to be retired, you'll need to review all your sources of retirement income – Social Security, your 401(k) or other employer-sponsored plan, your IRA, and so on – to determine if you'll have enough money available for your yearly snowbird trips without jeopardizing your retirement lifestyle. Your calculations will depend on what sort of snowbird existence you have in mind. Do you want to buy a second home or just rent? Will you be gone just a few weeks each year or several months? Clearly, to ensure a successful snowbird experience, you'll need to identify your goals and create a strategy for achieving them.

Snowbird today – If you've reached a point where you can indeed make your snowbird dream a reality, and you're ready to pack your bags, you'll need to take action on some practical matters, such as these:

Secure your home. If you have a security system, make sure it's armed and working properly. Stop your newspapers and magazines, forward your mail, ask your neighbors to remove any stray papers, flyers and advertisements from your porch or entryway, and arrange to have your snow shoveled.

Notify your bank. To fight theft, the fraud departments of many banks are getting more aggressive in spotting and denying unusual charges. That's why it's important to give your bank your temporary address and contact information before you leave. By doing so, you can reduce the risk of your account being frozen temporarily if your financial institution can't reach you with questions about charges from an unexpected location. You also might find it useful to open a bank account at your snowbird site.

Pay your bills. If you already pay all your bills automatically through bank authorizations, you may not have to do anything when you leave. But if you still pay some bills the old-fashioned way, with checks and envelopes, look for these bills in your forwarded mail.

Track your investments. You can probably track the progress of your investments online, and it's a good idea to do so, just as you would at your permanent address. Even if you're only gone a couple of months, you may need to make some investment moves, so stay on top of your accounts and contact your investment professional, as needed. As always, though, don't overreact to sudden market swings – ideally, you've got long-term strategies in place that can serve your needs in most investment environments.

The life of a snowbird can be a pleasant one. So take the necessary steps before you leave – and enjoy your days in the sun.

St. Johns County Sheriff's Corner

By David Shoar, St. Johns County Sheriff
Ghosts of Sheriffs' Past

The nation's oldest city and county seat is famous for its ghosts, ghost walks and ghost tours. As we begin a new year, I thought it might be a bit of fun to take a look at some of my more interesting 19th Century predecessors. St. Johns County has had a host of some colorful and controversial chief law enforcement officers.

The first sheriff of what is now St. John's County was James R. Hanham who put on the badge in 1821. His qualifications included a military background from the War of 1812 and he was not elected. Perhaps he complained that there was no civilian law enforcement and he was appointed sheriff by Major General Andrew Jackson who was serving as military Governor of Florida and would eventually become the 7th President of the United States.

The fifth county sheriff has a heritage that is still a part St. Augustine today. His historic home has become a venue for beautiful weddings and other special events. Whether his ghost still resides there is an intriguing thought, but there is no doubt that Sheriff Jose Simeon Sanchez played a significant role in the development of St. Augustine, St. Johns County and Florida.

Sanchez fought in the 2nd Seminole War. Under the guise of a truce the famed Seminole Chief Oseola and his lieutenants were lured to just West of St. Augustine where they were captured by troops likely including Sanchez. Oseola and his men were locked up at the Castillo de San Marcos. The public uproar regarding the breach of military etiquette apparently did not skew his reputation and Sanchez later became county sheriff. He also served in the first legislature and signed the Florida constitution. He served as sheriff until 1847.

Sanchez was succeeded as county sheriff by the fiery publisher and editor of the East Florida Herald, James Marcus Gould. He was described as being brash and outspokenly belligerent, both in person and in print. He too was elected to the legislature and also held office as Registrar of Public Lands and Justice of the Peace.

Local civil war history involves two sheriffs of the past. William Felix Mickler was sheriff from 1864 to 1865. Earlier he represented the county in the succession convention and voted to withdraw Florida from the Union. He served in the Confederate Army, rising to the rank of Colonel and helped plant mines in the St. John's River as well as fighting in the Battle of Olustee.

A young man who opposed succession from the Union was A.N. Pacetti, a name still found frequently today in St. Johns County. He served as County Sheriff from 1877 to 1881. A sea captain by trade during the early months of the civil war Pacetti volunteered to take others opposed to succession on his boat to Key West, flying a white flag of truce. Never the less his ship was captured by the Confederates. As he was about to be tried for treason he jumped overboard and made it to land where the next day he had a change of heart and enlisted in the Confederate Navy.

I wonder what the ghosts of these pioneers of law and order in St. Johns County would think if they could see the way our office functions today as one of the most modern and progressive in the State of Florida.

We have a really fascinating section on our website at www.SJSO.org where you can read a more detailed history of the St. Johns County Sheriff's office. Just click on the "About Us" link at the top of the page and then select the "History" tab. Under the section about 20th Century sheriffs you will find many wonderful stories including how uniforms for deputies came about. It's very interesting.

As always I appreciate your comments and suggestions concerning this column and any county law enforcement issues. Contact me by e-mail at dshoar@sjs.org, or be sure to follow us on our Social Media Platforms, Facebook, Twitter, Instagram, and Next Door. It is our hope from everyone here at your Sheriff's Office that you have a very safe and Happy New Year!
