Abstract:

Now that Oracle is delivering PUM images to keep your application current your organization has to understand the difference between what is delivered and how to apply "changes" to your system if you are an on-premise customer. This is done by creating a maintenance schedule, trying to stick to the schedule and knowing what to apply. If you want to get current, apply a make me current package. If you just want to apply a bug, there's a way to do just that. Come hear about the different types of updates that can be applied and how to select them from the image.
