

Why You Need Travel Insurance

Do You Need Travel Insurance Policy?

The answer is yes, you do need travel insurance if you are travelling. You might be willing to take the risk that nothing happens to you while travelling... which luckily is more likely than not. We are sure you could easily use the money on something else, something more interesting or fun. Our advice is don't.

Saving money by not taking a travel insurance is not real money saving, if something would go wrong you could end up with big financial loss - and it happens - taking the risk is just not worth it. You can have unexpected medical expenses while on a trip.

Why Do You Need Travel Insurance Policy?

Your travel insurance does not only protect your investment in the trip, it does also protect you and your family.

Comprehensive travel insurance does cover you for all kinds of unforeseen incidents while travelling, e.g., if you become sick, injure yourself, lose your luggage, have to cancel your trip, miss connection, etc.

Sometimes people have to cancel or interrupt their travel plans because of some unforeseen circumstances, say because of an accident or illness. If this happens before the trip you might only lose your nonrefundable pre-payment... which can be substantial in some cases or, if your trip is paid in full...you could lose it all.
