

Kelsi Huseman, Certified Athletic Trainer, is a new member of the OrthoNebraska Sports Medicine Team. Kelsi graduated with her degree in Athletic Training in 2012 from the University of Nebraska at Omaha and has worked in high school and collegiate athletics the past 6 years. An avid horsewoman, Kelsi was raised on a cattle ranch in Missouri and has rode and shown horses as long as she can remember. Her family moved to Auburn, Nebraska where she showed in all-around events in 4-H, open and AQHA shows and participated in PRCA rodeo queen contests during her high school and collegiate years. She also judged 4-H and open horse shows for almost 20 years. "I am super excited and humbled to be one of the medical providers for high school rodeo athletes in Nebraska. It is an honor to be a part of Nebraska high school rodeo." Kelsi and her husband, Adam, reside on a small acreage near Clarinda, Iowa.
