FRIDAY

JUVENILE TURF

Pre-entered horses

AKTABANTAY

Experienced colt with solid form over four very different tracks in England. His form when second to Estidkhaar in G2 at Newmarket given a boost when the latter won again in G2 at Doncaster next time out – but the form of his narrow (and somewhat fortunate) win over Future Empire in G3 at Sandown has not been too well advertised. Shipped to Longchamp in Oct, ran respectably in G1 but did only beat three of his rivals. Trainer had already said he would like to pause Aktabantay before this trip, so what is he doing here? At owner's request perhaps. Strong colt with a chance, but he's getting exposed.

COMMEMORATIVE

Fast improving, attractive colt with plenty of scope. Battled on well to win G3 over a straight mile at Newmarket, after having broken his maiden at the second time of asking at Doncaster (also 1 m. straight). Sure to move forward again. He's live, though turning track will be new experience. Restorer, his runner-up at Newmarket, was supplemented for the Racing Post Trophy (G1) on Oct 26, where he was a well beaten sixth of eight.

HOOTENANNY

Not a Euro, but his best runs have come in England and France – and they were good enough to make him favorite for this contest. Won 5-furlong Listed race at Royal Ascot in June (firm ground), and impressed again when runner-up to The Wow Signal (who was ill when beaten next time out) in strong G1 over 6 fur. at Deauville in August (very soft). Class not a question here, but stamina is. Hootenanny is a sprinter, and this is a mile (though not necessarily a stiff test).

THE GREAT WAR

First preference in Juvenile. Would have a better chance here, though a bit hard to fancy, despite representing such a strong team. He was found a soft spot to win a Listed event over 6 furlongs at The Curragh last time out – after having struggled against better in his previous runs.

WAR ENVOY

Only won a maiden but pay no attention to that. War Envoy has four good performances in defeat against G1 performers in Europe, most notably on his last start, when he was fifth, beaten no more than a length, behind Full Mast in a G1 over 7 furlongs at Longchamp (with Aktabantay 1 ¼ lengths behind). War Envoy's previous second to Estidkhaar in a G2 at Doncaster in September was also a fine effort (note that subsequent G1-winner Belardo was fourth in that race).

WET SAIL

Improving gelding representing rookie trainer who knows what he's doing. Wet Sail won a 6-fur. maiden at Salisbury on his third start, then ran third to Limato (probably Europe's best juvenile sprinter) in a Listed contest over the same distance at Redcar. Wet Sail was beaten less than three lengths that day, though it needs mentioning that Limato was value for at least twice the margin. Runner-up Mattmuwon a Listed race next out.

FAITHFUL CREEK

Six starts over five different tracks in England / Ireland, so not lacking in experience – but has not shown anything to recommend him here.

JUVENILE FILLIES TURF

OSAILA

A no-nonsense G3-win over 6 furlongs at Ascot in late June, followed by a break, sent Osaila on her way to Ireland in September, when she stepped up both in class and distance, taking on some very smart fillies in the 7-furlong Moyglare Stud Stakes (G1). Four of them beat her, but Osaila was only a length and a half behind the winner, Cursory Glance. Fellow Juvenile Fillies Turf contender Qualify was sixth, 2 ¼ lengths behind Osaila. The Moyglare Stud was one of the best juvenile fillies events in Europe this year, if not the best. Runner-up Lucida won a G2 at Newmarket 12 days later, and the third placed filly, Found, went on to G1 success at Longchamp next time out. Osaila was dropped in class for her next outing, and she had little to beat when taking a valuable sales race at Newmarket in early October. This turning mile should not be a problem. Merits respect.

QUALIFY

Well behind Osaila in the Moylgare Stud, and looks exposed, but she did come out of the race in good order, to win a G3 over the same trip at The Curragh – though it may have been a weak G3.

SIVOLIERE

Two off-Broadway wins and a Listed fourth brought about improvement in this daughter of Sea The Stars – enough to make her a Listed winner at Bordeaux (a smaller venue) in August, when she beat Kindly Dismiss by 3 ½ lengths. The two met again in a G3 at Chantilly two weeks later, when Sivoliere was third and Kindly Dismiss fourth. The race was won by Queen Bee (5th to Found in G1 next out, see Osalia) from Calypso Beat (whose best English form is a few lengths behind Osaila's best).

PRIZE EXHIBIT

Three respectable runs in defeat, all at G3 level, is not enough to make us consider this filly – representing the Toast Of New York connections - as one of the likely contenders in this race. On her way to US barn?

DISTAFF

L'AMOUR DE MA VIE

Front-running turf miler has been given 1st preference in the Distaff, cross-entered in the Filly & Mare Turf. She showed her best form when second to subsequent G1 winner Integral at Royal Ascot in the summer. Hard to see her making much of an impact if she runs here.

SATURDAY

FILLY & MARE TURF

CHICQUITA

Winner of the 2013 Irish Oaks (G1) – after having run second to Treve in the French version – Chicquita was sold from France to Ireland for €6 million last November (US$7.6 mill.). She joined Aidan O'Brien – but has not been a success for the powerful Ballydoyle team. Chicquita veered badly left when winning the Irish Oaks, and she is still not a straightforward runner. She did the same again on her most recent start, and probably threw away a G1 win in the process, as she was passed by two inferior rivals in the closing stages of the Champions Filly & Mare at Ascot. That race was run on very heavy ground, run two weeks after she had been unplaced in the 'Arc' in Paris, and just two weeks prior to the Breeders' Cup. Tough schedule. Is she hardy enough to run big at Santa Anita? What is it that causes her to jink under pressure? And, why is she here? Perhaps because she came out of her Ascot run in rude health. On the other hand, it may be a race taken in en-route to a date with one of Coolmore's North American based stallions. Either way, her best level of form gives her a shot – and we can expect to see her race on medication. Her 1st preference is the Turf, dictated by the 1 1/2-mile distance, which suits her best.

DANK

Last year's winner, who was then coming off two other impressive wins, the most valuable in the Beverly D Stakes (G1) at Arlington. Dank's 2013 season was as smooth as one can possibly hope for. She improved with every run and capped her campaign off with a solid win over Romantica and Emollient here at Santa Anita. This year has been anything but smooth. Dank has had just two runs, been below her best on both occasions, and not been seen in action since Royal Ascot in June, when she checked in fifth in the Prince Of Wales's Stakes (G1), more than ten lengths behind The Fugue. Her third to Japanese champion Just A Way in Dubai in March was better form, though she was beaten 8 lengths at Meydan. Based on last year's form, Dank is the one to beat, though it may be a gamble not in tune with the odds to back her for a repeat. The layoff is a worry. That said, her trainer Sir Michael Stoute is a master at these things so, who knows, perhaps he can pull it off again.

FILLY & MARE TURF

FIESOLANA

This is a tough and consistent miler (also with good sprint form) shipping in from Ireland. Fiesolana won the Matron Stakes (G1) over a mile at Leopardstown in September, beating dual G1 winner Rizeena by half a length, with 40-1 shot Tobann a close third. Most of the fillies' and mares' Group Ones in Europe, many introduced a few years ago, fall well short of the 'proper' Group One contests across the pond. The Matron may not have been amongst the weakest, but Rizeena was below form on the day, and it certainly wasn't one of the strongest such events. Fiesolana next went for the Prix de la Foret (G1) over 7 furlongs at Longchamp, where she was seen in the middle of the field throughout and finished seventh. She is as happy ridden prominently as she is when held up for a late run. Fiesolana has been cross-entered, with 2nd preference in the Mile. Her lead-horse on the gallops, Kaness Pass, won a Listed race in Ireland on Sunday.

JUST THE JUDGE

Last year's Irish 1,000 Guineas (G1) winner Just The Judge came back to winning form in the E P Taylor Stakes (G1) at Woodbine, where the sweeping turf course was more to her liking than Arlington, where she arrived too late on the scene to threaten Euro Charline in the Beverly D Stakes (G1), still made it up to third place. A mile and a quarter is right up her street, she is in top form, but coming from well off the pace will not be easy in the F&M Turf at Santa Anita, where she also meets tougher opposition.

L'AMOUR DE MA VIE

Front-running turf miler L'Amour de Ma Vie showed her best form when second to subsequent G1 winner Integral at Royal Ascot in the summer. She has been cross-entered, with 1st preference in the Distaff, where the opposition will be tough. If she runs here, well then the distance might be tough.

SECRET GESTURE

This filly was third in a sub-standard G1 for fillies and mares at Deauville in August, having been second in a sub-standard edition of the Epsom Oaks (G1) last year. Secret Gesture is not up to matching strides with the best of these – and her distance / ground preference is 10 to 12 furlongs on soft. She has been cross-entered, with the Turf her 2nd preference.

TARFASHA

Tarfasha entered the G1 stage when second in the Epsom Oaks in June, behind Tagroodha - who went on to beat Telescope to win the 'King George' at Ascot and run third behind Treve and Flintshire in the 'Arc' at Longchamp. Tarfasha also ran in Paris on Arc day, finishing a close fourth to We Are in the Opera (G1). She had previously won a G2 in Ireland, beating Chicquita by almost two lengths over 1 ¼ miles at The Curragh in September. Tarfasha is at her best on firm ground.

FILLY & MARE TURF

VEDA

French trained filly from astute trainer. Cross-entered, with the Mile her most likely race. Veda has yet to tackle further than a mile. In fact, all of her six races have come over that distance. Euro milers often stay 1 ¼ miles in the US, however, as races around two turns on flat tracks put less emphasis on stamina. This daughter of Dansili produced a taking performance behind the smart gelding Solow in the Prix Daniel Wildenstein (G2) at Longchamp in early October. After leading a furlong out she fought back well when headed, and lost by just half a length. She had previously been second to Avenir Certain (who is 6-for-7) in the Poule d'Essai des Pouliches (G1) - French 1,000 Guineas if you like. Fillies with her type of profile have done well in the BC Mile over the years, and Veda is open to improvement.

TURF SPRINT

CASPAR NETSCHER

Caspar Netscher bounced back to form with a win in the Nearctic Stakes (G2) over 6 furlongs at Woodbine on October 19, when he he finished strongly from off the pace to beat Black Hornet by three parts of a length, with favorite Calgary Cat a neck further back in third. Calgary Cat and Black Hornet had filled first and third in a G3 over the same course just over a month earlier. More will be needed, but Caspar Netscher is in good shape at present, and his ability to stay further than six panels is a big plus in the BC Turf Sprint.

WIND FIRE

A Listed winner over 5 furlongs at Sandown Park (a stiff course) in June, and placed twice in G2 sprints as a juvenile in 2013, Wind Fire needs to find abnormal improvement to figure here.

JUVENILE

THE GREAT WAR

This Aidan O'Brien trained contender is bit hard to fancy if he takes on the best US juveniles on dirt. This race is his 1st preference, he has been cross-entered for the Juvenile Turf., The Great War was found a soft spot to win a Listed event over 6 furlongs at The Curragh last time out – after having struggled against better in his previous runs.

WAR ENVOY

Only won a maiden but pay no attention to that. War Envoy has four good performances in defeat against G1 performers in Europe, most notably on his last start, when he was fifth, beaten no more than a length behind Full Mast in a G1 over 7 furlongs at Longchamp (with Juvenile Turf contender Aktabantay 1 ¼ lengths behind). War Envoy's previous second to Estidkhaar in a G2 at Doncaster in September was also a fine effort (note that subsequent G1-winner Belardo was fourth in that race). Like The Great War, War Envoy has been cross-entered for the Juvenile Turf – and perhaps Aidan O'Brien decides to run one in each of these races.

TURF

BROWN PANTHER

Owned by UK soccer star Michael Owen, Brown Panther has had a great season in Europe – but his first trip to North America was a disappointment. Not that he raced badly. He never got to race at all, after having bolted and dropped his rider before the start he was withdrawn. He got very edgy and upset prior to the Canadian International (G1), behaviour that is quite out of character. His connections decided to ship him on to Santa Anita, where he can only be seen as an outsider. True, he ran out a wide margin winner of the Irish St Leger (G1), but he is at his best over further than 1 ½ miles, and he prefers soft ground. In addition, Brown Panther not in the same league as the likes of Flintshire and Telescope.

CHICQUITA

Winner of the 2013 Irish Oaks (G1) – after having run second to Treve in the French version – Chicquita was sold from France to Ireland for €6 million last November (US$7.6 mill.). She joined Aidan O'Brien – but has not been a success for the powerful Ballydoyle team. Chicquita veered badly left when winning the Irish Oaks, and she is still not a straightforward runner. She did the same again on her most recent start, and probably threw away a G1 win in the process, as she was passed by two inferior rivals in the closing stages of the Champions Filly & Mare at Ascot. That race was run on very heavy ground, run two weeks after she had been unplaced in the 'Arc' in Paris, and just two weeks prior to the Breeders' Cup. Tough schedule. Is she hardy enough to run big at Santa Anita? What is it that causes her to jink under pressure? And, why is she here? Perhaps because she came out of her Ascot run in rude health. On the other hand, it may be a race taken in en-route to a date with one of Coolmore's North American based stallions. Either way, her best level of form gives her a shot – and we can expect to see her race on medication. Her 1st preference is the Turf, dictated by the 1 1/2-mile distance, which suits her best.

FLINTSHIRE

Trainer Andre Fabre's Breeders' Cup contenders have done remarkably well over the years - interestingly he never run a horse on medication when visting North America. To nominate a handler as the world's best racehorse trainer would not make much sense, but any such short-list would have Fabre in the top three. He really is different class, he is most selective when shipping abroad, and this year he sends just one horse to the Breeders' Cup; Turf runner Flintshire. This classy four-year-old is coming off a game second to Treve in the 'Arc' on October 5 , and he is the likely favorite. The son of Dansili won the Grand Prix de Paris (G1) last year, and early on this year he produced a strong seasonal debut when taking second to the mighty Cirrus des Aigles in the Coronation Cup (G1) at Epsom. The key to this horse is the ground, Flintshire is at his very best when it is good to firm or firm. A handy, well balanced performer, he should be well suited to Santa Anita.

TURF

JUST THE JUDGE

Cross-entered with Filly & Mare Turf as her 1st preference, Just The Judge would be trying a staying trip for the first time, and be taking a big step up in class, if opting for the BC Turf. Winner of the one-mile Irish 1,000 Guineas (G1) last year, Just The Judge came back to winning form in the E P Taylor Stakes (G1) at Woodbine, where the sweeping turf course was more to her liking than Arlington, where she arrived to late on the scene to threaten Euro Charline in the Beverly D Stakes (G1), still made it up to third place. A mile and a quarter is right up her street, she is in top form, but not good enough to mix it with Magician, Flintshire and Telescope.

MAGICIAN

Last year's winner of the BC Turf comes back in an attempt at emulating another Ballydoyle star, High Chaparral, who won this event back-to-back in 2002 – 2003, albeit dead heating with Johar on the second occasion. Magician's form has not been quite as sharp as it was in 2013, when he won the Irish 2,000 Guineas (G1) in the spring, and capped an excellent campaign off by beating The Fugue here at Santa Anita. However, he has solid performances this year too, and must be respected. His best of the year came when he was runner-up in the 10-furlong Prince Of Wales's Stakes (G1) at Royal Ascot, on a day The Fugue gained her revenge on him. Magician was not as sharp when last seen in action, as Hardest Core beat him in the Arlington Million (G1) in August. He has been given a break since. Like last year Magician will be coming off a long layoff.

SECRET GESTURE

This filly was third in a sub-standard G1 for fillies and mares at Deauville in August, having been second in a sub-standard edition of the Epsom Oaks (G1) last year. Secret Gesture is not up to matching strides with the best of these – her distance / ground preference is 10 to 12 furlongs on soft. Cross-entered, with the Filly & Mare Turf her 1st preference.

TELESCOPE

Telescope finally delivered the five-star performance we had been expecting for well over twelve months when running away from his rivals for a most impressive win in the 12-furlong Harwicke Stakes (G2) at Royal Ascot in June. He looked top class that day, as he won by 7 lengths from his stable companion Hillstar (who had won a similar contest at Royal Ascot 2013 and took this year's Canadian International). Hillstar was still in search of proper form at the time and Telescope's performance was flattered by the wide margin, but he confirmed he belongs in G1 events by finishing second to Taghrooda in the King George VI & Queen Elizabeth II Stakes (G1) five weeks later. Telescope's next assignement was the Juddmonte International (G1) at York, where he had an off day. Cutting back to 10.5 furlongs may not have been ideal, but it was not as damaging as the fact that he got badly worked up in the preliminaries. He was a never threatening third behind Australia and The Grey Gatsby. Shortly afterwards, Sir Michael Stoute mapped out a plan to get Telescope fresh to the Breeders' Cup, meaning that he bypassed the Arc test. Stoute has won the BC Turf with four times, with Pilsudski, Kalanisi and twice with Conduit. A fifth success is within his reach.

MILE

ANODIN

A brother to the outstanding Goldikova, who won the BC Mile three years on the bounce, Anodin will get a lot of attention at Santa Anita – but don't make the mistake of thinking it is his pedigree, rather than his form, that makes him interesting. This colt is very smart, and he may find improvement. Things did not at all work out for him last time out, when traffic problems more or less wiped him out of the Prix de la Foret (G1) at Longchamp four weeks prior to the Breeders' Cup. Anodin is best judged on his runs in the Queen Anne Stakes (G1) at Royal Ascot and Prix Jacques le Marois (G1) at Deauville – both over a mile. Toronado proved too good at Ascot, winning by $\frac{3}{4}$ length from Verrazano, with Anodin $1\frac{1}{4}$ lengths further back in third. Freddy Head's charge went one place better in the Marois, producing an excellent run to take second behind Kingman, Europe's top miler (possibly best horse full stop) this season. He was much the best, beating Anodin by $2\frac{1}{2}$ lengths. With G1 winners Olympic Glory (who won the Foret) and Rizeena filling third and fourth, the form is rock solid.

FIESOLANA

This is a tough and consistent miler (also with good sprint form) but her 1st preference is the F&M Turf.. Fiesolana won the Matron (G1) over a mile at Leopardstown in September, beating dual G1 winner Rizeena by half a length, with 40-1 shot Tobann a close third. Most of the fillies' and mares' Group Ones in Europe, many introduced a few years ago, fall well short of the 'proper' Group One contests across the pond. The Matron may not have been amongst the weakest, but Rizeena was below form on the day, and it certainly wasn't one of the strongest such events. Fiesolana next went for the Prix de la Foret (G1) over 7 furlongs at Longchamp, where she was seen in the middle of the field throughout and finished seventh. She is as happy ridden prominently as she is when held up for a late run. She has been cross-entered, with 1st preference in the Filly & Mare Turf.

KARAKONTIE

One of the best juveniles in Europe last year, and an honest winner of the Poule d'Essai des Poulains (G1) – French 2,000 Guineas - this spring, Karakontie is a Mile contender that it's a bit hard to place. He has the class to make an impact, and he may also be open to improvement, but his most recent runs have been below par. Just one of them came that recently, by the way, as he finished 11th to Olympic Glory in the Prix de la Foret (G1) on 'Arc' day. The drop to 7 furlongs may not have been ideal. He was coming off a four-month break since finishing eighth in the Prix du Jockey Club (G1) over 10.5 furlongs. His supporters will appreciate seeing Karakontie returning to a mile. Though will he return to form?

MILE

MUSTAJEEB

This is a lightly raced, progressive 3yo who may well surprise a few at Santa Anita. Mustajeeb seemed to suffer a tactical defeat when second to Bow Creek in a G2 over a mile at Leopardstown in September. Perhaps he needed the run too, not having raced since winning the Jersey Stakes (G2) over 7 furlongs at Royal Ascot in June. He beat Muwaary by a length, while conceding three pounds, in that straight-course event. Muwaary was coming off a good fourth, 2 lengths behind Karakontie, in the 'French 2,000 Guineas' and went on to take third in the Prix Jean Prat (G1), 3 lengths behind Charm Spirit – who has since won the Prix du Moulin (G1) – from Toronado – and Queen Elizabeth II Stakes (G1). Mustajeeb grabbed the lead two furlongs out when winning at Royal Ascot.

TORONADO

Toronado, representing England's champion trainer Richard Hannon Junior, deserves to be favourite for the Breeders' Cup Mile (G1), a role Wise Dan would have taken but he was sadly ruled out. Something that opens the race quite a bit, one would think, but not all that much. If Toronado has kept his form, and gets a decent post position, he should prove too good here. Having won Group Ones at venues a different as Ascot and Goodwood, and been placed at the top level when racing at Longchamp, he is an adaptable miler. Handling Santa Anita should not be a problem. Toronado won the Queen Anne Stakes (G1) on his seasonal debut in June (beating Verrazano and Anodin), and he went on to run second to champion miler Kingman in the Sussex Stakes (G1) at Goodwood – a race he won back in 2013. Toronado should get his preferred ground at Santa Anita, he has good tactical speed, a thoroughly game attitude to the racing game, and he has a top jockey on his side.

TRADE STORM

Coming off a nice win in the Woodbine Mile (G1) in Canada, Trade Storm is in top form. He is an experienced, battle hardened miler who runs his best races when he gets a strong page to close into. He has also performed close to the very best level at Meydan in Dubai. Winning chance? If Toronado and Anodin are on song probably not – but recent form counts for a lot and Trade Storm is in with a squeak.

VEDA

French trained filly from astute trainer. Cross-entered, with the Filly & Mare Turf the 2nd preference. All of her six races have come over a mile. The daughter of Dansili produced a taking performance behind the smart gelding Solow in the Prix Daniel Wildenstein (G2) at Longchamp in early October. After leading a furlong out she fought back well when headed, and lost by just half a length. She had previously been second to Avenir Certain (who is 6-for-7) in the Poule d'Essai des Pouliches (G1) - French 1,000 Guineas. Fillies with her type of profile have done well in the BC Mile over the years, and Veda is open to improvement.

SPRINT

WIND FIRE

A Listed winner over 5 furlongs at Sandown Park (a stiff course) in June, and placed twice in G2 sprints as a juvenile in 2013, Wind Fire needs to find abnormal improvement to figure here.

CLASSIC

TOAST OF NEW YORK

A visually impressive winner of the UAE Derby (G2) at Meydan in March (when beating a sub-standard field with ease), Toast Of New York showed improved form when runner-up to Shared Belief in the Pacific Classic (G1) at Del Mar. Given that the latter is our top rated horse going into the BC Classic, and likely to be sent off favorite, one has to take a look also at Toast Of New York. However, he does have quite a lot to overcome. Firstly, this is his fourth long haul journey of the year (he also ran in the Belmont Derby prior to del Mar / below form, scoped badly after the race). Has a 3yo ever been subjected to such a campaign? Probably not, and in addition Toast Of New York tries dirt for the first time, meets a stiffer stamina test than in previous races, and goes up against the a much tougher group of rivals than before. UK bookmakers have him at 16-1. He is likely to be much bigger at Santa Anita.
