Confidentiality

Counsellors take notes as part of the professional requirements for the BACP. These notes along with anything discussed in your sessions will be kept in the strictest of confidence in accordance with the Data Protection Act 1998. There are however certain circumstances in which confidentiality cannot be maintained including:

- Where a client gives written consent for the confidence to be broken
- Where the counsellor is compelled by a court of law
- Where the counsellor genuinely believes that there is a risk of serious harm or injury to the client and/or third parties this includes any likely act of terrorism, any issues arising concerning child protection, money laundering.

Sessions

1. Clients will initially be offered 8 sessions, each lasting 60 minutes.
2. Sessions will take place at the same time on the same day unless otherwise specified.
3. The counsellor will not engage with the client outside of the agreed session times.
4. As a Charity we are reliant on funding and donations to keep providing services. Depending on what the client can afford, we charge between £1 and £10 for every counselling session, payable in advance of each session by PayPal or in cash at the start of every session. To pay by PayPal go to www.chrysaliscentreforchange.co.uk and clicking on the "Donate with PayPal" button at the bottom of the page. You do not need a PayPal account. The client is responsible for deciding how much they will pay for each session, and for telling the counsellor if they are experiencing financial difficulties or are unable to pay the minimum donation.
5. Professional ethics discourage the giving, receiving or exchanging of gifts during the therapy relationship, as such it is our Policy that counsellors do not give any gifts to clients and that only small inexpensive tokens of gratitude may be accepted at the end of the therapeutic relationship, such as thankyou cards. Refusal of gifts is not a rejection of gratitude but simply an adherence to the guidelines of professional ethics as set out by the BACP to ensure appropriate boundaries and a professional relationship is maintained throughout.
6. Remote counselling sessions taking place by Zoom will have a unique meeting number and password, which will be sent to the client in advance of the first session. The counsellor will log on at the arranged appointment time and wait 15 minutes. If the client hasn't logged on after 5 minutes, where possible, the counsellor will call the client's mobile in case there are technical problems. If there is no answer a message will be left asking the client to contact CCC office number to discuss future appointments.
7. In the case of counselling sessions taking place over the phone, the counsellor will call the client at the arranged appointment time. If there is no answer, they will try again after 5 minutes, and then one final time after 10 minutes. Where possible, a message will be left to contact the CCC office to discuss future appointments.
