Cleanse

Cleansing is an important piece to keeping skin healthy and in control of blemishes. It is important to cleanse at least once a day to remove makeup, dirt, debris, and perspiration. It is a personal choice if you cleanse twice a day as some people like the natural oils of the skin in the morning. It is important not to over-cleanse and strip our acid mantle (that delicate eco-system at the surface of your skin) so choose a cleanser that fits your skin type. Creamy cleansers are generally for drier skin to leave lipids on the skin. Creamy cleansers need to be removed with a warm wash cloth to remove makeup without over-stripping the skin. Foamy cleansers can be rinsed easily with warm water. Glycolics will assist in digesting surface dead skin and salicylics will follow the oil component in the skin to dissolve more oil and sebum. Therefore, glycolics may be more suitable towards aging and blemished skin where surface dead skin should be removed. Salicylics should be used on oily skin types to dissolve excess oil.

Pomegranate Antioxidant Cleanser

A CREAMY CLEANSER WITH ALOE, JOJOBA AND GRAPE SEED

Mature and dry skin. This classic creamy pomegranate cleanser nourishes and hydrates the skin with aloe vera, jojoba seed oil and safflower oil. The pomegranate acts as an antioxidant that brings life to the skin giving it a healthy, radiant glow. This cleanser will also remove make-up.

Exfoliate

Exfoliating twice a week removes surface dead skin so products can penetrate and, in the case of acne, keep the pores clear. Choose an exfoliant that is correct for your skin type. Note that clients with compromised skin due to illness or pregnancy should not use products with acids or retinol. Suitable products would be Raspberry Refining Scrub and Beta-Carotene/Papain Renewal Serum. It is essential that all skin types use moisturizers (even oily skin) to feed our acid mantle and give nourishment to that delicate eco-system at the surface of our skin.
