The emotional issues coming up for you are your attachments

Humanity has always been enveloped by, but unaware of, the divine field of Love – all of creation is contained lovingly within it – but now the reality of this concept is breaking through into your awareness and can no longer be dismissed as delusional or make-believe nonsense by those who are fearful of anything that their physical senses cannot identify and measure. Scorn and disbelief of realms other than the physical no longer cut it because there is far too much evidence to prove otherwise, and more is being detected daily. Truly the first signs of humanity's awakening are becoming ever more manifest, in fact the truth that you will most definitely awaken into your natural state as fully conscious beings can no longer be meaningfully denied.

To be fully conscious includes, by default, an awareness that there are many realms of consciousness, of existence, apart from the physical environment that you experience on planet Earth; that in fact there are no limits to consciousness; that it has constant and instant access to all of creation; and that nothing is hidden from it. Love – the energy field of creation – hides nothing, disguises nothing, and displays all that exists for the endless delight of all sentient beings. Anything of which you remain unaware is by your own personal choice; it has not been withheld from your field of knowledge by some externally imposed imperial or dictatorial decree.

All that our Father created is sentient, and sentience allows for limitless evolution in a field that is itself infinite. Sentience is intelligent and has the ability to invent tools such as those that enable it to define itself as limited, and then experience existence in that limited state, or to define itself as limitless and then experience itself as such. It is free to establish conditions or situations that appeal to it in the moment, now, and then extend those moments into eons, or reduce them to a pulse of pure energy that is far too short, too brief to register or be measured by any instrumentation that could ever be developed in a state of limitation.

All sentient beings were created in Love with eternal and everlasting life. Some then chose to experience limitation, and while that choice remains supported by the collective that made it, it will be divinely honored and the experience will continue. However, the limiting conditions chosen and experienced by humanity have been fully developed and have no further hidden aspects that remain to be uncovered, so humanity has chosen to depart that unreal state and awaken. You are presently in the process of unwinding the skeins of limitation that you wove around yourselves; skeins of fear, anger, resentment, distrust, judgment, and so on, which have hidden Love from you. Love, as you have often been reminded, is all that exists, and when those illusory skeins in which you entangled yourselves are removed, the fullness of Love will be majestically and gloriously revealed to you.

Many of you are holding yourselves ready to move into your divine state at a moment's notice, when the intent of your collective will releases the entanglements that have attached you to the illusion and allows them to fall away with it into nothingness. Because there is only Love, anything that detaches from It ceases to exist, in fact has never existed, and is swept away to dematerialize like smoke or mist, or like images in a mirror that disappear when the object reflected moves away. Not a trace remains by which it can be remembered, let alone reconstructed.

Freedom comes from your activated choice to release all that is not aligned with your natural state of oneness or wholeness which is permanently bonded to God in inseparable union. That is a paradox when considered from the present limited state in which your intellect operates because there, separateness seems free, and to be bonded indicates a state of suppressed submission to a higher authority, a state of virtual imprisonment, when the opposite is the real situation. For example a fish within a rocky pool beside but separate from the ocean is trapped, contained, but a fish contained within the ocean is free of containment, totally free.

By releasing your attachments, your entanglements – to your angers, resentments, judgments, and fears – you free yourselves of all the limits that those attachments impose – to float freely, unimpeded and unrestricted in the infinite field of God's Love, your natural habitat. The emotional issues coming up for so many of you, the turmoils and disturbances which are throwing you off balance, are your attachments coming up like bubbles or balloons for you to address. You can hold on to them or release them. If you hold on they pull on you, and drag you where you do not need or desire to go, whereas when you release them they float away and disappear, leaving you unencumbered, light, and utterly free.

Let go of judgment and all the unloving and heavy burdens that it imposes upon you, and discover the joy, the freedom, the lightness, and the carefree existence that becomes possible and that instantly embraces you.

Your loving brother, Jesus.

Hi Neal,

Here it is on May 9th after the last week of confessional healing sort of step work to cleanse myself of self blame and fear from hiding from the traumas that I have held in all this time. This morning's prayers brought me into awareness of how you have been helping me to heal, and you are the one who really knows how to listen well so I get to really feel the childhood reality without feeling judged. Thank You Neal.

I trust your intricate and profound wisdom from all our mutual self disclosures together and I am fascinated and amazed with gratitude for your friendship. It seems that you are the epitome of a good listener that I have been waiting for 47 years practicing myself, so Thank God for you and your devotion to truth and awareness. You are helping me heal old experiences that I have blamed myself for all these cruel years of denial, and after a few days driving and visiting with much time for secluded contemplation here at Laurie's, I am in awe of your affirming validation for me.

I just saved your loving responses at the end of my saved files of this week's writing and I realize what you are doing for me now I have waited all my life for, and until I was ready and had a good friend to listen well and nurture me out of my mental quagmire. I Have a continuing sense of completeness and freedom from such twitching nervousness from holding in all my revelations from this week, and it has been a work in progress while we communicate so successfully with each other. You are a healer; a kind hearted spirit of Holy Spirit; a Sannyasin with compassion for worthy mirrors; and a courageous heart friend...

Love,

Dear John, Your messages are so wonderful! Thank you for being a divine & clear channel. the audio connection to your blog is a good feature. there seems to be a speaker problem as the sound fades as the the the piece progresses. I have checked my speaker sound levels they are up. maybe yours are in need of a boost. Thank you, Carole

I look forward to your messages so very much! This ascension process is grueling and this week has been one of the worst. I find these messages like a balm for my stresses. Thank you...and tell Jesus we thank him too!

I do hear your sound on the page but it is very hard to hear. Could you boost your mike while taping?
