“Yesterday is history, tomorrow is a mystery, and today is gift, that’s why the call it the present.” –Eleanor Roosevelt

Is anyone out there familiar with the phrase: ‘I’m off and running and never turning back?’

Maintaining a perpetual process of continually moving forward is the only way anyone will ever experience change. Simply put, there are absolutely no rewards by looking back. Yesterday is history.

Focusing on your future is where the action is. The anticipation for great things is exciting. It moves you, gets you motivated into action ...and guess what?

Action brings change, whether it be in your health your living conditions, or better yet, think about how the actions you take in the present can bring the dreams for your future into reality! Exciting, isn’t it?

I challenge you to take today’s gift of the ‘present’.

Use this time wisely and do the right thing sooner than later. Take control of your financial future. The younger you start, gives you a superior advantage of making sure your dreams come true too.

However, if you are a baby boomer in retirement, or just at it’s doorstep, you still have choice to alter your current financial future and have your dreams come true also.

Never stop dreaming, because to do so means you stop living. Plus, keeping dreams in your forefront drives you into action, to continue to move forward.

Retirement certainly isn’t about stopping, it’s the beginning of moving forward and living out your dreams. Therefore, by making wise decisions, even now, can assure your retirement years are fun filled, and also can assure your funds will outlive you.

Tomorrow may be a mystery, but no matter if you’re a Baby Boomer, Millennial, or Gen X, by taking control of your financial portfolio, that ‘mystery’ can have a wonderful ending.
