

Take a minute to think about what responsibility means. It's not the chores you have to do, or finishing your homework – those are your responsibilities, the things for which you are responsible. Write a few sentences about what it means to really be responsible. Use specific examples from your own life (maybe on how you meet your responsibilities). Include some thoughts on how to handle your responsibilities, and then wrap it up with a few sentences about how to show true responsibility as you grow older:
