Summary:

Missy Barrett is a fictional 9-year-old child who lives in real life Sevierville in East Tennessee. Since 2017, the character of Missy Barrett has encouraged people to do good deeds on her fictional birthday which happens to fall on August 30. To date, nine counties in East Tennessee and two cities in Tennessee – Sevierville and Chattanooga – have proclaimed August 30 to be International Missy Barrett Day: A Day to Do Good Deeds. The Republic of Molossia as well as the Republic of West Who, the Grand Duchy of Flandrensis, and the Kingdom of Unixploria are all declaring August 30th to be International Missy Barrett Day: A Day To Do Good Deeds in their micronations, and I am hoping your micronation will also do likewise.

Proposal:

Designate August 30 a National Holiday and encourage all Citizens to do at least one good deed.
