Dear Representative Thompson:

Our organization, Men and Women for a Representative Democracy in America, is extremely concerned about the fires that have occurred at America's food facilities and chicken plants. We'll over a million dollars' worth of food has been lost by these fires, and this pattern of destruction of America's food sources seems to be occurring with regularity throughout the county. Can anyone offer an explanation?

Ninety-Seven fires have damaged or destroyed U.S. processing plants since Biden's election.

As some people have reported, the tragic destruction by fire of some of the facilities headquartered seems not to be coincidental. Men and Women for a Representative Democracy feel an investigation is warranted by the Agriculture Committees in both the House and Senate.

Therefore, this organization formally requests our legislators in Washington to commence immediately an investigation into what clearly appears to be something significantly more than a coincidence.

With the current rumbling about food shortages, Americans need to know the reason why suddenly food supplies are being destroyed by fire. If anyone can investigate this issue it is you!

Sincerely,
